- 35. He should have asked about him. Later, Pip felt ashamed to discover that his benefactor was the convict.
- 36. Pip now feels that he is different to the people around him as he's going to be rich. He says he feels ashamed of Joe's poor education.

This affects him as he now avoids contact with people. As a result, Pip feels lonely.

		The novel

- 35. No, I don't agree with her advice. Joe is a faithful friend to Pip. Even after being abandoned by Pip, he nursed him and paid his debts off.
- 36. No I don't like her character. Estella is proud and cruel to Pip. Her actions cause Pip to get ashamed of himself, his life and his old friends.

The novel

- 35. (a) The first turning point is when Pip first met Miss Havisham and Estalla. This is a turning point because Pip fell in love with Estalla, and realised that he had to be a gentleman to marry her. Therefore, he started to improve his education and manners to increase his chances with Estella.
- (b) The second turning point is when pip came into good fortune and was asked to become to gentleman. A lawyer (Mr Jaggers) from London explained that Pip would soon inherit a large fortune from an anonymous benefactor, and that his education as a gentleman would begin immediately if he accepted the request. The benefactor wishes to remain a secret.
- 36. (a) Mrs Joe felt bad for being a blacksmith's wife. She treated her husband (Joe Gargery) cruelly.
 - (b) Mrs Joe was cruel to her brother. She abuses him verbally and emotionally.
